

Curriculum Vitae
TIMOTHY SHARPLES, Ph.D.

PERSONAL MISSION

---

My life's mission, rewriting what's right and shaping modern police culture through emotional intelligence, has led me down diverse paths of learning, sharing, and, most importantly, teaching. Drawing from years of active-duty law enforcement experience, I aim to engage and influence the current and next generations of criminal justice college students and law enforcement professionals while fostering critical thinking and personal growth skills. This is achieved by incorporating real-world experiences, sharing personal insights into the curriculum, and augmenting with supportive course activities.

BIOGRAPHY

Dr. Timothy Sharples, a valued scholar-practitioner, holds a doctorate in Industrial and Organizational Psychology. With a remarkable 32-year tenure in law enforcement, encompassing diverse roles and ranks across multiple agencies in three states, he brings a wealth of practical experience to his work.

As a certified Master Instructor by the Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST), he adeptly crafts engaging course content tailored to learners of varying skill levels. Dr. Sharples is recognized for integrating problem-based learning within evidence-based practices, particularly addressing the complex challenges confronting modern policing and society.

Currently, Dr. Sharples spearheads The Eikon Group, his advisory and consulting organization. Here, he leads a team dedicated to exploring the psychology behind emotional intelligence and its impact on law enforcement policies and procedures, as well as community dynamics. Through collaborative partnerships with law enforcement leaders, Dr. Sharples assesses, designs, and implements transformative programs. These initiatives span a wide array of subjects, including peer support, leadership and followership, emotional intelligence, procedural justice, interpersonal communication, officer safety and wellness, and community engagement. His work emphasizes the interconnectedness within and beyond the realm of policing, fostering holistic approaches to enhancing law enforcement effectiveness and community relations.
